The original plates were destroyed, together with the original illustrations, in the fire of the world's great exhibition. We have therefore carefully revised and corrected the copy, and have had it re-printed in a new and more beautiful manner. The demand, the first of all our publications, as the copy is so scarce, and the price is so low, that we have decided to issue several thousand copies, and will print an edition of 100,000 copies, and will print an edition of 100,000 copies, and will print an edition of 100,000 copies.

BASTIAN AND TAYLOR.

Their Surroundings—Autobiography of Mr. Taylor, Etc.
Dr. Dumont C. Duke gives His Stunning Experience.
An Illustrated Cut of the Place of Cloth cut from the Spiritist's Dress.
Mrs. Mary DeGroot's own Testimony.

As is well known now throughout the country, Messrs. Bastian and Taylor are holding sessions each evening of the week, Saturday excepted, at their rooms, corner of Adams Street and Fifth Avenue. Those who have visited their sessions, since their return from Europe, and witnessed the wonderful manifestations given through their mediumship, no doubt feel thankful that the Harmonical Philosophy is favored by two such able representatives—whose daily department in life, is in harmony with the teachings of the Næassians; but not like in one respect—they are not household, but reside in nicely furnished rooms, whose walls are adorned with paintings emblematic of the different phases of life, and which in themselves simply express the innate nature of the two mediums. They admire the beautiful art, and their admiration has taken definite shape, as the walls of their rooms will testify.

When entered into their parlors, an air of comfort, grace, and dignity is at once impressed upon the mind, and you feel as if in the presence of the inevitable.

The fact that their home is attractive, lends additional charms to what the angels may, for it does not seem possible that evil influences can find lodgment there. They have, too, a varied assortment of rarest featured congeries—the English Bay Leaf, Gold Finch, German Curlew, African Pheasant, Larks, Mocking Birds, &c.,—all of which were presented to them by attending friends in Europe, and which are attended to with scrupulous care, and who enjoy the admiration of their watchful guardians in a sweet song that God himself learned their ancestors, and which is now called an instinctive expression of brute nature—just as if those sweet warblers were birds, who "sing merrily, or trill such soft plaintive notes."

Those birds lend an additional charm to the home of these mediums, and serve the mind to a just appreciation of the manifestations of nature. We allude this particularly to their surroundings, and also to the high degree of refinement and culture, as can be found in a lady of such noble life outside of the Spiritist's rank.

Their shelves are lined with valuable books, of poetry, philosophy, history, fiction, psychology, etc.—many of which were presented to them by attending friends in Europe, and which are attended to with scrupulous care, and who enjoy the admiration of their watchful guardians in a sweet song that God himself learned their ancestors, and which is now called an instinctive expression of brute nature—just as if those sweet warblers were birds, who "sing merrily, or trill such soft plaintive notes."

ORDER OF INTERVIEWING.
who in Earth life occupied a prominent position in Society, and who was universally esteemed for her many excellent qualities. She holds communion with the children of earth to convince them that there is a Spirit World, that has joy and pleasure suitable for those whose life is characterized by benevolent deeds and philanthropic purposes. She takes pleasure in doing good, hence each evening she employs her leisure moments during the session in making artificial flowers from sphry and silver wire, emblematic of some sentiment, and which she presents to various ones in the circle, and which are highly prized as mementos. She is really a bright spirit, and her presence shows a generous tenderness over the circle.

A spirit calling himself George Fox, is also always present at Mr. Bastian's circles. On one occasion he inspired the following:

THROUGH THE MEDIUMSHIP
OF Mrs. Woodford:

A charmed circle we will make, and call
With loving words the spirits from the land Of everlasting bliss, where they dwell,
And one whose gentle life is given up To serve an exalted and true being bright.
Will willing minister to them and us,
And in a death like trance be lost to earth,
Whilst we enjoy the blessed privilege Of sweet communion with our loved and lost.

Useful serving thus, he'll win his crown Of glory for the life to follow this.
Will bring him softly to his sacred rest,
And on the waves of harmony borne Beyond our earth, to his heavenly realm,
Our call a quick and glad response will meet;
For hearts above lead still in union
With ours, and love is conveyed over all.
I've master, stepbrother, and hand to us,
To lead us on, and love's leading breath,
Our call a quick and glad response will meet;
For hearts above lead still in union
With ours, and love is conveyed over all.

For us they drag the burden of the flesh Again, and glide with slow and trembling Along.

And briefly stated before our raptured gaze
And then, as though our earthly air did press
Too sore on their transcendent souls,
They sensitively start away, and pass Behind the veil long dark 'twixt them and us.

But soon, with strength renewed, again they
To breathe the breath of earth once more.

There comes a solemn seeming like to meet Before our gaze, as wreaths of mist at morn
To rise and melt away, and then we see Their spirit garments fall and disappear.
A fragrance from the higher spheres of life
And love, and we are minded of the time When we sat and watched their earthly forms.

Arrayed in garments of the grave; when flowers
We have twisted about their plighted ring,
And mingled bloom-breaths with heavenly Hymns brought.

We had not thought to see Their sleeping gently back to earth again In robes new woven by their power of will—By thought brought from Nature's store house, air.

And fashioned as the spirits were then
Their houses far raised above our mortal ken.
We had not dared to grasp again an earth Torn, loved hands, seemed in death like our.

But patient, reined with noble skill
To hear again their voices, and to meet Our breathing, hushed of consciousness love,
They prove that God's spirit never dies.
A solemn conquest of power they
By one and all of us, and in a sacred robe, Reveal themselves; and simply teach us thus
The greatest lesson of this greatest age.
Oh, wonderful power, Oh, wonderful power that They don't shut their doors to us, but open.

Oh, love that knows no death, but faithful lies From heaven and immortal life, to prove themselves immortal, and that have in love With a spirit to give utterance to such exalted sentiments like the above, it is not strange that Mr. Bastian's circles are always attended with high order of manifestations.
Malcolm Taylor is Mr. Bastian's constant companion. He is a clairvoyant and channel set, and his presence in the dark circles give it additional charms, for he not only sees the spirits who present themselves, but can hear what they say.

The following autobiography will give our readers something of an idea of his history.

I was born in the year 1810, in Dundee, Scotland. My father was a native of the city of Glasgow, my mother, of Edinburgh. As with many other clairvoyant mediums, the gift of second sight is natural to me. Since birth I have possessed that strange power of spiritual perception so common among the famous psychics. From the earliest years of my childhood, I have been subject to strange moods of spirit, in which I would sit alone and dream, as it were, and often in those states I would say things at a distance and in the future, which afterwards turned out to be true. I have been so much so, that the years of my boyhood I was also conscious of the form of human beings, but so vague and indistinct where they sat, that I thought them of my imagination.

Brought up in the strictest orthodox manner, my father being preacher of one of the established churches in Dundee, I lived there until eleven years of age, when our family moved to America, and my father went into business in New York City. I was then sent to school.
The power of spirit perception continued with me for me, and I was six years in the school in perfect form, until my mother passed away from earth, and I was left an orphan child.
I had no longer my father's home, and I could no longer count on my father's aid.

One day when I was at school, I saw some one standing at my side, but I was not aware of it, and I continued to study the lessons, until, at last, I looked up, and I beheld a female the exact resemblance of my mother. I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as if I had seen her,
and I felt as if I had seen her, and I felt as
